

Privacy Policy

Women Inquire® is strongly committed to protecting the privacy of its user community.

The intent of this privacy policy is to describe the information Women Inquire® may gather about individuals who visit the web site, explain how that information is used, and state Women Inquire® disclosure practices.

Please note that this policy applies only to Women Inquire®, and not to the web sites of other companies or organizations to which we provide links. Site Usage Information

Women Inquire® gathers "site usage" information from all visitors to the Women Inquire® web site.

Such data is used in the aggregate, to help determine general usage patterns and fine-tune layout in order to ensure that our site is as useful and enjoyable as possible.

This "site usage" and statistical information may be made public information at our discretion. Individual User Information

Individually identifiable information will not be released to third parties, except in the cases listed below. Disclosure

Women Inquire® reserves the right to access and disclose individually identifiable information to comply with applicable laws and lawful government requests, to operate its systems properly, or to protect itself or its users.

As mentioned above, we reserve the right to share aggregated "site usage" information with third parties.